Greetings from the North Pole!

Your elf is back! It was so hard for them leaving your family last Christmas Eve, but like I promised, they have returned for another Christmas season! Your family is special. I am so excited for all the fun you guys will have again this year!

When it comes to having an elf visitor, you know you're in for some fun and maybe even a few silly pranks. Because it's been so long since the last visit -- and we definitely want you to be on the Nice List again -- I thought I would remind you about a few things that will help you!

1. Just because your elf doesn't talk to you doesn't mean your elf can't hear you! Elves are really great listeners. Sometimes I ask elves to share with me the things you say, so be sure you are kind.
2. Your elf can't make their nightly trip back to the North Pole until after you go to sleep at night. So, make sure you hurry to bed when it's time. Your elf loves using their magic to visit the North Pole and tell me about all of the good things you are doing.
3. Most nights, when your elf returns to your home, they'll find a new place to "hide." They love picking new spots and watching you look for them!
3. Don't forget: Never touch your elf as they will lose their magic and won't be able to return to the North Pole each night to report to me.
4. On Christmas Eve, your elf will head back to the North Pole to help me get ready for Christmas deliveries. But, they'll return again, just like before!

Remember -- obey your parents, be kind to others and share your toys. These are good choices that can help bring happiness to your home during this busy time of year. Those things make me proud too!

Love,

Santa Claus
